ABOLISHING UNWANTED HAIR

If your method of hair removal is not immediately permanent, why bother? LUCY PETERS warrants immediate and permanent hair removal with her Integrated System®. Thirty years and more than two million hours of treatment on more than 70,000 satisfied customers have given this hair-removal specialist a solid reputation.

"We understand that each hair has a growth cycle, and we treat the follicles only when they are active. We destroy the living portion of each and every hair without damaging skin," says Peters. She explains: "When hairs that have been dormant or transitional begin to grow again, those hairs are then treated, and there is no re-growth." The Integrated System's patented technology delivers the current directly and strictly to the germinative part of the hair, using probes that are flexible and insulated, and that deliver the electrical impulses in milliseconds. By applying the current to the growing area of the follicle, the process does not affect the surrounding tissue.

"This is why our hair removal is painless," says Peters. "The follicle remains empty with no scarring." After an initial evaluation and consultation, a client is given an individualized program with a prescribed number of treatments, which incorporates the life cycle of the hair in the area to be treated.

From the first treatment, hair removal is permanent. Treatment time and expense are accurately established, so there's no wondering about the final cost, number of treatments or total length of time required until hair removal is permanent.

Peters advises that clients should never accept evasive answers about how long the treatment should take or what the total cost will be. "If you want permanent results, the Integrated System is the only medically proven method of immediate and permanent hair removal with warranted results."
